

CUSTOMER RETENTION PLAYBOOK

Version 1: August 9th, 2026

About the Playbook

The Retention Playbook serves as Telcom Inc.’s guide for converting data-driven churn models into proactive customer retention strategies. Based on the core insight that customer churn is driven by service experience, both product-wise and with Telcom as a company, this playbook connects our analytics with marketing and customer facing operations. It equips sales teams, marketing teams, and customer support representatives with clear, automated, rules, approved promotional incentives, and targeted outreach distribution lists to intervene with high-risk customers before they decide to cancel their service with Telcom.

1. Frontline Customer Service Playbook

For High-Risk Customers Who...	Strategy
Call in with technical difficulties (ex. phone or internet connectivity issues)	• PRIORITY: fostering a support relationship – customers need to trust Telcom services • Resolve the issue as best as possible, offer a network health check or account review to ensure customer satisfaction
Pay via electronic check or manual monthly invoicing	• PRIORITY: automating payments • Offer a limited recurring $5/month discount if they switch to an automated method of payment
Are on a month-to-month plan	• PRIORITY: lock in long term service • Offer incentive based on customer demographic, to your discretion ○ Younger: digital streaming discounts, suitable partner companies ○ Older: invoice credits, suitable partner companies
Want to modify or downgrade their service	• PRIORITY: keep the customer in the mindset of “altering” their plan opposed to canceling services • If not already, flag the account as high risk • Present other contract options before cutting services

2. Marketing Playbook

For High-Risk Customers Who...	Strategy
Are on a month-to-month plan	• Launch targeted “Sign & Save” campaigns via email and in-app notifications (if applicable) ○ Features: first month free or discounted rate for converting to 1- or 2-year contract • Customization: customize the incentive by age demographic ○ Younger: digital streaming discounts, suitable partner companies ○ Older: invoice credits, suitable partner companies
Subscribe to fiber optic internet or subscribe to multiple Telcom services	• Send proactive reminders of Telcom service value, highlighting network reliability and speed • Reinforce service quality to ensure customers realize the value of the products they are paying for
Are near the end of a contract or promotional pricing period	• Trigger automated re-engagement campaigns 30 to 60 days prior to contract end • Offer a one-time invoice credit for early renewal

3. Analytics Playbook

For High-Risk Customers Who...	Strategy
Veer from model insights	• Consult with marketing and customer service teams to ensure correct insights are being addressed in retention strategies. • Adapt current strategies to fit customer needs and grow with our consumer base • Continue to monitor the lifecycle of models to ensure we are paying attention to evolving risk factors and not ignoring shifts in our customer dynamic

Adaptation of Playbook Strategies

With the combined efforts of the customer service, marketing, and analytics teams, Telcom will continue to expand these strategies to fit the needs of the customers. With the increased desire for technology incorporated into simple tasks, our playbook must evolve to incorporate new innovations like Artificial Intelligence and sustainability laws further than it currently does. With that, the current strategies laid out serve as an important basis for Telcom to make future customer decisions around.
